This symposium offers students a forum to showcase scholastic and creative works and practice the skills at the core of their Anchor, Discourse, and Focus coursework.

This event celebrates academic excellence, innovative research, and intellectual endeavors in an interdisciplinary environment where academic and creative minds converge. The symposium provides a venue for students seeking professional level presentation and public speaking skills to a diverse audience and will prepare students for future academic and creative conferences.

Students will share their work in one of the following ways:

- Oral presentations: students present their scholarly work to an audience.
- Poster presentations: students present their research-based posters in a specific venue.
- Performance: students perform a piece of music; read a piece of original creative writing
- Fine Arts: students will display their work in the medium of their choice in a gallery-like setting.
- Demonstrations: Students exhibit models of their work.

- April 15th
- Student Union
- Go to UMKC’s Communication Studies homepage to find out more!